1. Introduction

The Universal Declaration of Human Rights, and the core human rights treaties, and other universal instruments relating to human right ^[1]. The Legal status of these instruments varies declarations; Principles, guidelines, Standard rules and recommendations have no binding legal effect. But such instruments have an undeniable moral force and provide practical guidance to states in their conduct; Covenants, Statutes, Protocols and Conventions are equally binding for those states that ratify or accede to them. "India has the second largest Tribal Concentration in the World, and the Scheduled Tribes are spread across the country mainly in forest and hilly regions" ^[2]. The
