Dear Elizabeth Maya Muthirenty Varkey,

On behalf of the admissions committee I want to congratulate you and offer you admission to the Energy Systems Management Program at the University of San Francisco. You have been admitted to the class starting at the San Francisco - Downtown campus for Fall 2021. To support your graduate studies, you have been awarded a Program Scholarship of $4,000, ($2,000 for Fall 2021 and $2,000 for Spring 2022).

There are two important steps you need to take in order to secure your spot in the program:

1. Complete your Next Step Form

First, complete the Next Step - Admission Response Needed Form on your status page to accept or decline this offer of admission. This step confirms your intention to attend USF, but you will still have time to decide whether or not to submit a deposit. An "Accept" response triggers your next steps, including sending your admission packet and requesting an I-20 for international students. You must accept on this form before you can pay your admission deposit.

2. Pay Your Admission Deposit

After you have completed the Intent to Enroll form, you will have access to pay the non-refundable admission deposit of $700 online. Your deposit is due on May 13, 2021. This deposit is applied to your first tuition payment.

Pay your deposit through the link on your status page, which becomes available after you complete the Intent to Enroll form. International payments are made through Flywire, and will take 48 hours to process and reflect on your account.

Should we not receive your deposit by the deadline noted above, your admission may be withdrawn.

You will receive more information via email on how to register and other details from the program office. For any questions about your admission or enrollment, please contact the Energy Systems Management Program Manager, Luwei Xie, at lxie3@usfca.edu.

Congratulations and welcome to the University of San Francisco,
